ON THE PENSIONS OF ACADEMIC TEACHERS

The right to pension of contract and appointed academic teachers is regulated by the Act of 1998 on pensions from the Social Insurance Fund. While the right to acquire the benefit is granted to both categories of employees at the age of 60/65 on the same rules, the length of their possible employment has been differentiated. There is no age limit to which a contract academic teacher can work while the maximum retirement age of an appointed academic teacher is 67 provided that he/she has acquired the right to pension. The compliance with this condition leads to the termination of the employment. Other rules have been adopted for academic teachers who are 70 years old.
